

AI-Powered Managed Services for Contracts

As an industry leader in consulting and implementation, the Cimplifi team of experts earned their in-house experience from the legal and financial services sectors with deep operations, vertical, and technology expertise that can help you run your contract analytics and lifecycle management (CALM™) projects effectively and efficiently.

Transform your contracting methods and create enterprise value in the process. Advising on all major aspects of the contract lifecycle, we implement software and act as a trusted advisor, allowing our clients to lean on our experience in both consulting and platform implementation.

Our team works hand in hand with the head of legal operations and line of business stakeholders, championing AI CLM best practices and bringing in additional technical expertise to support or augment existing staff, allowing your team to remain focused on their important tasks and projects while supporting a business-as-usual operation.

Build a center of excellence to help achieve lasting outcomes. Our skilled resources and experts run the day-to-day operations of your CLM software through streamlined workflow processes that maximize every aspect of AI.

When you need a team to perform significant volumes of contract review, we provide trained teams of experts with certifications to assist with implementing or running your CLM.

Through our AI-powered managed services, we use contract analytics, AI, and other emerging technologies to dramatically reduce the number of people required for a project, maximizing the benefit and value of your technologies.

We're ingrained in legal, financial services, and legal operations, and this is our unique area of expertise. We have subject matter expertise and experience in the contract technology, and that makes us uniquely qualified to provide skilled resources backed by the experts who know how to operate and run CLM systems effectively.
